

CARP Response from Ontario's NDP

Dear CARP Members,

When cancer patients like Suzanne Aucoin have to fight for access to life-saving drugs, there is a problem with our system. When the working poor like Jason Jones cannot access basic dental care services, there is a problem with our system. But under Dalton McGuinty's Liberal government, thousands of people lack access to the drugs and health services they need.

However, instead of covering more drugs and services like the IV cancer therapies and PET scans that are important to you, Dalton McGuinty actually delisted key OHIP procedures – eye care, physiotherapy and chiropractic. Privatizing key drugs and health services, taking them away from the people who need them, is the wrong approach. The Ontario NDP is committed to fair access to health care for all Ontarians.
